As we come together at the Seder table all around the world, this Passover feels different once again.

The war is not over. 59 hostages remain in captivity. And yet, as a people, we continue to move forward — with courage, conviction, and the unshakable belief in a brighter future.

This year, as you gather with loved ones to celebrate our Jewish spirit, we invite you to reflect not only on our history of liberation, but on the strength we continue to show in the face of ongoing adversity.

We pray for the safe return of every hostage, for the protection of Israel's brave soldiers, and for peace to follow the pain.

May this season of renewal bring healing to our people and hope to our hearts.
